

STEPHANIE ARBUCKLE

Stephanie.arbuckle@ubc.ca

Stephanie has over 20 years of experience in the IT consulting, strategic management, and project management fields as a strategic consultant, account manager, project manager and coach. She is especially interested in ways to achieve 'deep democracy' on teams, believing this is the best conduit to creative collaboration. Her expertise includes team coaching, project management training, project management maturity assessments, and PMO design. Stephanie has led projects, as well as project management improvement efforts, for biotech companies, engineering firms, web design and educational organizations. She has also led marketing strategy and planning efforts for large firms as well as start-ups.

Stephanie first established her own consulting firm in 1996. Today, Arbuckle Consulting Group Inc is an experienced team dedicated to helping clients enact their strategies in a dependable AND creative way, usually by improving project management practices and team effectiveness. Our custom project management methodology draws from PMI as well as ORSC's relationship systems approach. Turning strategy into action is where the team shines – be that via our services in coaching teams, personal productivity and tools, or program management.

Stephanie first degree is an Honours Bachelor of Commerce degree from the University of Ottawa (Marketing and IT). She also has a Master's certificate (Science, Technology & Society studies at the University of Maastricht), and a Master's degree (Liberal Arts at Simon Fraser University). She holds a Project Management Professional (PMP) designation. Training includes personal productivity (David Allen's GTD), Authentic Leadership (The Alia Institute), and coaching (CTI, ORSC). She recently completed her training with the Center for Right Relationship's ground-breaking Organizational Relationship Systems Coaching (ORSC) program.
